A decision in the Mason case will be given on the 8th of May. In the meantime "Betty and the Baby" will keep on receiving subscriptions and attracting more or less of public attention.

The Gentile women of Utah will present to the wife of Senator Edmunds, a silk quilt of elaborate design and exquisitely wrought, as a mark of their appreciation of her husband's services in securing the passage of the anti-polygamy bill through Congress.

The Woman's Silk Culture Association has presented to Mrs. Garfield a silk dress pattern, made entirely of American production and manufacture. It is now on exhibition in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington. It is one of the finest pieces of American silks ever made in this country.

It was supposed when General Keifer was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives that he would be up to the average of Ohio office-holders, but he is failing. He is not particularly bright as a presiding officer, and also lacks somewhat in judgment, and hence he occupies a very uncomfortable seat.

Mr. Barnum has gained the possession of Charles Dickens' overcoat which he wore while in America the last time. It was given to him by Mr. Childs, of Philadelphia, who has more historic The Main Building of the Miltrinkets and souvenirs than any man in the United States. The overcoat will prove an excellent advertising dodge for Mr. Barnum.

Those who hear Mme. Adelina Patti next season, will have to pay dear for their tickets. Colonel Mapleson has secured her for next season in this country, stipulating for a season of forty nights at $4,400 a night, and $44,000 has been placed in the hands of August Belment & Co., as a guarantee fund. Her engagement will begin next October.

There is a movement on foot in Iowa to nominate ex-Secretary Kirkwood to Congress for the Seventh district. But it is claimed that he will not accept, as he is rather inclined to pass out of politics. He is nearly seventy years old, and though in good health, and one of the best campaingn speakers in the State he does not desire to engage actively in politics.

The following table will be of interest as showing the number of pensioners in Wisconsin, and the annual amount of money paid out on pension accounts:

There are 270,000 pensioners in the United States now borne upon the rolls, and the amount they draw to say nothing of arrears, is thirty million dollars.

On Wednesday Governor Rusk directed the issuance of orders organizing the first and second battalions of the Wiscon sin National Guard into full regiments -the First Regiment to have its headquarters in Janesville, and the Second in Oshkosh. The officers are as follows:

First Regiment-Colonel, Wm. B. Britton, of Janesville; Lieutenant Colonel, H. H. McLennagan, of Beloit; Major, Frank M. Reed, of Racine.

Second Regiment-Colonel, Gabe Bouck, of Oshkosh; Lieutenant Colonel, C. A. Born, of Sheboygan; Major, J. H. Mars. ton, of Appleton.

Commissions were also issued to-day to Captain Charles King, U. S. A. (retired), and Lieutenant John D. Clem (21st Inf. U. S. Special to the Gazete.

Denver, April 27.-A hundred masked men at Lake City overpowered the guard and took from the jail to-day, George Betts and Jim Brown, who shot Sheriff Campbell, and hung them to the bridge.

BLAINE AND BELMONT.

Special to the Gazette.

Washington, April 27.-Blaine and Belmont had an interesting encounter in the committee, room this morning. Blaine took Belmont to task for a misconstruction of his dispatch to Hurlbut, saying that there was a malicious, deliberate, misconstruction. Blaine in parliamentary language called Belmont a liar. Belmont charged Blaine with bullying and cowardice. Finally he told him he would see him personally, and would privately hold him responsible. The committe adjourned amid the greatest confusion. It is now considering whether it shall continue Blaine's exam-

Washington, April 26.—It is reported that Mr. Belmont proceeded to-day to examine Mr. Blaine on the Chili-Peruvian question. The spectators who crowded the room at the time were kept convulsed with merriment, and after it was all over they irreverently called the performance "circus." In fact, it was funny, from the fact that the witness seemed to know all about what was going on, while the examiner was profoundly ignorant of the matter in hand. His stupidity was so that the crowd began to be sorry the examiner, and if it had been within the limit of propriety would hard on the young man. Belment had his questions all written out in ink, and appeared to know so little about them that he had to read them off in a dull, hazy way in the order in which they were set down-by whom it did not appear-regardless of relevancy to the answers of the witness. Mr. Blaine would some times make an answer a little more fully than had been expected, and would thus trench upon the ground expected by the examiner to be covered by the next. It made no difference Belmont. had just been answered voluntarily he read it off all the same when he came to it. Then the audience would give vent to a derisive laugh, and the witness would demurely call attened on that subject. Belmont would stumble on, and no one knew what he was driving at when the hour of adjournment arrived. It looked as though he was laboring under the disadvantage of bad coaching from somebody who has reasons for trying to set a trap for Mr. Blaine. As a result of the day's hearing, Mr. Blaine had an opportunity to explain away a good many things for which he has been viciously attacked in the press. He explained his South American policy,

MINISTER HURLBUT.

BELVIDERE, Ill., April 26.—The following programme has been issued by the committee having in charge the memoriare stationed in this State, with 4,059 al services in honor of the late General S. A. Hurlbut: The memorial services will be held in the court house square on Sunday afternoon, the 30th instant, at 2 o'clock. The Hon. Emery A. Storrs, of Chicago, will deliver the memorial address, and the Rev. Dr. Kerr, of Rockford, will deliver a short address upon the resolutions. Invitations have been extended to and accepted several Masonic military organizations, and several hundred members of these organizations will be present. The military organizations will rendezvous at Adelphi hall and the Masonic fraternity at Union hall. The procession will form promptly at 1 o'clock. A detailed program prepared by

EMERSON'S CONDITION.

Boston, April 26.-Mr. Emerson's condition to-day has not been such as to give encouragement to those who hope for his recovery. His sleep last night was less refreshing than it was the night before, and was frequently disturbed and restless. He has also manifested to-day less inclination to take nourishment. He is consequently weaker, and seems to be losing strength steadily, and the opinion seems to be gaming ground among the members of his household that unless be begins to mend within the next two or three days, he cannot recover. The change for the worse is slow, but even no change in the case of a man of his age is unfavorable. A message just received from Concord, by telephone, states that his condition, at a late hour this evening, was not materially changed.

It is reported that his physician has told him that the best he can promise is that he can live for six months. The Senator has gone to the Springs in Arkansas in hopes of finding relief, taking a surgeon with him. Before he left Washington intimate friends called upon him, but were unable to see him, being told that he was under the influence of morphine and could not be disturbed. It is thought to be significant that all his family, including two sons who are married, have gone with him, and his colleagues in the Senate have little hope of seeing him again alive. His disease has developed into an active cancer of most virulent form, and it has refused to yield to the most skillful and vigorous treatment.

Visible Improvement. Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. X., writes:

The Wind as a Motive Power.

Turning, now, to sources of energy derived from sun-heat, let us take the wind first. When we look at the register of British shipping and see 40,000 vessels, of which about 10,000 are steamers and 30,000 sailing ships, and when we think how vast an absolute amount of horsepower is developed by the engines of those steamers, and how considerable a proportion it forms of the whole horsepower taken from coal annually in the whole world at the present time, and when we consider the sailing ships of other nations, which must be reckoned in the account, and throw in the little item of windmills, we find that, even in the present day of steam ascendency, old-fashioned wind still supplies a large part of all the energy used by man. But, however much we may regret the time when Hood's young lady, visiting the fens of Lincolnshire at Christmas, and writing to her dearest friend in London (both sixty years old now if they are alive), describes the delight of sitting in a bower and looking over the wintry plain, not desolate, because "windmill fend additional animation to the scene. we cannot shut our eyes to the fact of a lamentable decadence of wind-power. Is this decadence permanent, or may we hope that it is only temporary? The subterranean coal-stores of the world are becoming exhausted surely, and not slowly, and the price of coal is upward bound-upward bound on the whole, though no doubt it will have its ups and dows in the future as it has had in the past, and as must be the case in respect to every marketable commodity. When the coal is all burned, or long before it is all burned, when there is so little of it left, and the coal mines from which that little is to be excavated are so distant and deep and hot that its price to the consumer is greatly higher than at present, it is most probable that wind-mills or wind-motors in some form will again be in the ascendant, and that wind will do man's mechanical work, on land at least, in proportion comparable to its present doing of work at sea .- Sir William Thompson, in Popular Science

THE SOLO.

- I gaze on the blazoned windows
 The columns ashy and cold,
 The fretted groinings and arches,
 The ceiling of azure and gold.
- The organ shudders and mutters Like a monster dying in pain; The chorus has wailed its parting, Lamenting, repenting in vain.
- An angel whose wings are furled; You lift your voice in the solo, And I fly from a stricken world.
- I traverse the shining oceans
 Where melody rims the skies,
 And I pass the islands of glory,
 And the headlands of Paradise
- You bear me, I care not whither, So long as I hear you sing, For toil and grief are forgotten,
- And life is a heavenly thing.

For my soul has returned to earth, and the silence falls like a sorrow Which blanches the face of mirth. -J. W. De Forest, in Harper's Magazine. Malaria a la Mode.

"Yes, sir," remarked a Congressman, in the enjoyment of a 5-cent chariot seat, "no doubt of it in the world. Washington is one of the most unhealthy points on the continent. I hardly strike the town before malaria strikes me, and it's my opinion that the Capitol should be removed." Well, maybe it should; but as long as there is any lingering hope that he will die here in the line of his important duties, no man of sense would advocate the transfer. I surveyed this sufferer with great care. He came from the West. He wore a long beard, a red nose, an inflamed eye and a girth of about eighty-four inches. With the aid of an ordinary imagination you could see the red-headed duck, pate de foie gras, calves' head a la viniagrette, terrapin, and champagne, all laid away in layers under his belt. From the size of his head and the swelling in his templar veins it was evident that he had a bad case of Washington malaria on hand. That's one type of the disease.

Again, you'll find a Congressman with nerves so unstrung that he can't sign a check for his board. He's a great sufferer. He has to go out about twelve times a day to see "the doctor." He hates to be alone, and the thought of anything to eat operates on him like a red rag on a bull. Then he writes home that he has been taken down with the Washington malaria.

Malaria is a peculiar complaint. It is one of those portable diseases you can carry around with you almost anywhere if you have enough money to buy the drinks. Several years ago, when the virulence of this complaint in Washington was first circulated all over the country by the statesmen who made periodic calls at the capital, we thought it might possibly be true to some extent; but it did seem rather remarkable that the people who lived here in the capa-city of natives, and followed the pious and orderly customs of the place, never suffered to such an alarming extent as these transient travelers. At last it was observed, however, that statesmen who come on here without their families—not caring to expose them to the frivolities of the capitol—are the first to yield to the ruinous influence of this malarious atmosphere, while those who bring their families, and run on regular schedule bed-time, are seldom troubled with the complaint. - Washington Capital. Absence of Mind.

Hoffenstein's Prize Brogan.

Hoffenstein was busily engaged marking the selling price on some clothing which had just arrived, when suddenly stopping in his work he turned to the clerk and said:

"Herman, I had forgot if ve sell and all uf dose plack jean bants vat vas damaged. Vas any more uf dem in de sdore

"Yes, Misder Hoffenstein. I dink dere vas dree bairs left. I haf been drying to sell dem but de beople say dey don't vant to go around de sdreet mit bants on vat makes dem look like a circus brocession. Dere vas yellow spots all ofer de bants, you know.' "Vell, subbose dey haf got spots on dem, vas you going to let de beople dink dey vas damaged? My gr-r-acious, Herman, de longer you vas in de pisness de more you don't learn noding. Vy, ven a man comes in de sdore und dells me dot dose bants vas damaged I dells him he vas misdaken und I asks him if he know a biece uf quadruple, vox finish, needle point, hand dwisted vool from a biece vat vas von ply, cotton stitched und mit a beveled edge. Ven I ask him dot he don't can say noding. Den I dell him dot de bants vas not damaged, und dot dey vas made uf vot vas called in de old vorld Spanish spot vool, de best ardicle made dere. In a gouple uf minutes afder I dalk to de gustomer he buys de bants, und I half sell nine bairs in dot vay." Hoffenstein had scarcely finished speaking when a negro with a bundle in his hand and considerably excited entered the store.

"Vell, my frent, vat can I do for you?" said Hoffenstein, advancing toward him and smiling pleasantly.

"You can't do anything fur me," re-plied the negro, angrily, "but I want yer to gib me back my money what I paid fur des hyar shoes or I'se gwine to take de matter fore de law. I gib four dollars for dem shoes an' I nebber wore dem but six days fore de soles drapped off, an' when I 'zamined dem dar warn't a God's blessed ting dar but paper. I'se bin cheated, and when a man thinks he can come miratin' around me an' I ain't gwine to say nuffin' he's apt to find hisself in de nine hole.'

"My frent," said Hoffenstein, quietly, "did you find anyding in de soles uf dem shoes?"

"No, sah," replied the negro. "Vell, dot vas a biece uf hard luck, my frent. De shoes vat you buy vas de Louisiana brize shoe, und ven you dake a bair uf dem you vas liable at any moment to find a dwenty dollar gold biece in de soles uf dem. If de soles uf de brize shoes vas made uf hard ledder, dey vouldn't vear out, and de gonsequence vould be you don't can find de dwenty dollar biece, und dot vas de reason de soles vas made of baper so dot dey vill vear oud soon, und let de beople know if dey git a brize, you know." "Is dese hyar shoes de regerler prize shoes?" inquired the negro, greatly in-

"Vell, my frent, if ye see a man vat come in de oder day und show me a gouple uf dwendy dollar bieces vot he got oud uf dem shoes, you vould say dey vas a gold mine.

"If de shoes is de regerler prize shoes, I'll take 'er nudder pair.' "Certainly, my frent. Herman, wrap de sheutleman up a bair uf dose Louisiana brize shoes, and dake dose vat you dink de money vas in.' When the shoes had been paid for and the negro had gone, Hoffenstein said:

"Herman, did you see how I vork off dose old star brogans?"

"Yes, Misder Hoffsnstein." "Vell, ven efer a gustomer comes in de sdore, recgolleck dot dey vas de Louisiana brize shoe mit a dwenty dollar gold biece in des leuf dem. I think I vill learn you someding about de business yet." - New Orleans Times.

The Modest Father.

- " Yes." "Lots of dead and wounded men?"
- "Did you kill many?" "Well, I shouldn't like to answer that | quehanna river.

"Are you very modest, pta?"
"I hope I am too modest to brag."
"That was what Mr. Smith meant, then, when he was telling the men down at the drug store that you hadn't any war record to brag of."

"He did, eh? Smith is a liar!"

"That's what I thought. He told the men that you run so fast he couldn't catch you on horsebook and cany horse

Wanted to Break His Heart, but He Didn't Drop.

His name was Moses Sparrow. He was very green. That was the idea that always came into Miss Page's mind when she looked at her country landlady's son. Such a rustic youth, with such fair hair, such big blue eyes, such sloping shoulders, such a lamblike expression. And, being there at the farmhouse, whither she had been sent to spend the summer months, the city belle resolved that she would try her powers of fascination upon the boy, who struck her as so good a subject for firtation, in which all the fun was to be on her side and all the sentiment on his.

And at it she went, beginning with a smile, a word, and rejoicing to see the fish bite so readily. She enjoyed herself very much until she grew tired of it, and then she decided on breaking the heart she had won and enjoying the crash. So she turned him out in the garden and made him sit beside her on the bench under the wistarias, and said

"I'm going home next week. I shall send you wedding cards when I'm married. I'm to be married to a rich old gentleman next winter."

Then she waited to see him drop at her feet. He only said: "Wall, I'm real glad! I kinder felt afraid I'd been goin' too far with you. I'm a sort of butterfly, flirtin' from flower to flower, you know; and I hev flirted with you, I du allow. I was afraid you'd go off in a decline or suthin-you seemed to set so much on me-if you heerd sudden-like that me and Ann Maria was keepin' steady company. But, law, sence you're goin' to be married, there ain't no harm done!" Then he smiled at Miss Page, and she arose and sailed away from him with great dignity. - Yankton Leader.

Pears.

Over 1,800 years ago Pliny wrote All pears whatsoever are but heavy meat unless boiled or baked," and it is probable that the varieties cultivated at that early date could hardly have been anything but small in size and bitter in taste. But when Pliny recorded this famous opinion he wrote for his time, and the idea is as little worthy of consideration to-day as the philosopher's real knowledge of the truth at the present day must have been limited. Pears are regarded at the present time as among the most wholesome and nutritious fruits. Baking or boiling may improve them for weak digestive organs, but eaten raw and weak digestive organs, but eaten raw and freely at all times they are productive of a fine blood and healthy skin. The amount of real nutriment they contain is hardly equal to that of apples, but the fine and delicate juices are hardly excelled by any other fruit. Observations About the Baby.

The baby does not belong to the animal kingdom; the animal kingdom belongs to him. He is a King. In fact, he is always aching. However, a baby is often spoken of as "this wheat creature;" which is why they cradle him. You can't shock him. He is not a creature comfort. The Limit of Human Life.

In the Revue Scientifique M. de Solaville considers the question debated by physiologists so much, "Can man reach and pass the age of one hundred years?" His article is republished in the Popular | the acts! I mean the intervals between Science Monthly, and it presents an interesting array of opinions and statistics. table. They seem to have no idea of Buffon, the first man in France to raise the inquiry as to the limit of human life, argued that as man becomes an adult at 16 he ought to live to be six times that age, that is 96. Heusler, the German, thought that a year previous to the age of Abraham was equal to but three months of our time, among the people of the East, but even he declared that "man kills himself rather than dies." Dr. Hufferand and other German physiologists held that man does not become an adult until 25, and that he ought to live to be eight times that age, or 200. Dr. Gardner, an English physiologist, believed that a century is nearly the limit of human life.

As to the greatest age attained by man in modern times there is a conflict of opinion, Sir George Cornewell Lewis believing that the existence of a centenarian has not been demonstrated. M. de Solaville, however, furnished statistics which rebuke such skepticism. He says Hippocrates, father of medicine, lived to be 90. Terentia, the divorced wife of Cicero, passed 110, although her life was vexed by four successive husbands, and in almost all countries there are many instances in which men and women have survived a century, a few having lived almost two hundred years. As to the means of attaining the greatest possible longevity various suggestions are given, the fact being noted that centenarians have almost invariably been temperate, regular in the use of plain food, accustomed to much walking and devoted to the dictum of "early to bed and early to rise."

A summary of such advice is contained in the following quotation from Hoffman, the wise and witty German physiologist: "Avoid excess of everything, respect old habits, even bad ones, breathe a pure air, adapt your food to your temperament, shun medicines and doctors, keep a quiet conscience, a gay heart and a contented mind." M. de Solaville finds that more people pass sixty years of age in France than in any other country, but the number of French centenarians is not increasing. What is better, however, is the fact that the average duration of human life is increasing in that country. As physiological laws come to be better understood, the average duration of life will be increased throughout the world. For example, the irregular habits of most New Yorkers may not permit us to cherish the hope of producing many centenarians, but the fact that the great mass of the American people are becoming more familiar with and more obedient to the laws of health no case of absolutely instantaneous ustifies the expectation that the average duration of life will steadily increase in the United States.

Lace Making in Belgium.

A correspondent of the Troy Times writing from Belgium, says: Lace making has been for ages a specialty of Belgium, and it employs to-day 130,-000 women in its manufacture, the value of their work amounting to 50,000,000 francs annually. No one who has ever witnessed the slow and tedious process by which the countless threads, en- eight hours, and in the others death retwined on numerous bobbins and en- sulted in periods varying from four to tangled in a seemingly inextricable net- twenty-eight days. Recovery may take work of lace-pins, are woven into the place even when the wound is extensive, delicate fabrics bought and worn with for a bullet has been found imbeded in such careless ease will ever murmur at | the substance of the heart after a lapse the price demanded for such cobweb of six years from the date of the injury, adornments. With some kinds it requires three months to complete a yard, and the sad faces of the lace women attest the hopeless, unending life of toil to which they are devoted. A lace maker must begin to learn when a child, to acquire sufficient dexterity with her fingers, and when she is expert she can only hope to earn about 20 cents per | Lancet. day, working Sundays and fete days, if employed in an establishment. Point de Venise is now made with a little less labor, as parts of it, such as leaves and flowers, can be sewed on like applique, instead of woven in, as formerly.

The World's Forests.

There are about 34,000,000 acres of forest in Germany (of which 20,000,000 are in Prussia), bringing in an income of $50,000,000 per annum. The state forests are taken great care of in all parts of Germany, in Prussia alone $500,000 being spent every year in replanting. The imports of timber exceed the exports by over 2,000,000 tons. Austria and Hungary have upward of 43,000,000 acres of forest; but in Austria proper the state does not possess more than 7 per cent. of the wooded area, and Austria is now obliged to buy most of her timber in Bosnia and Montenegro. Servia and Roumania have some very fine forests, but Italy, though her forest area extends over nearly 14,000,000 acres, does not do much in the way of a timber trade, as the roads leading to the forests ar bad that it is almost impossible to mathematical the timber when cut. Much the same is the case with Spain, which has 8,500,-000 acres of forests; while Portugal, which has only 1,000,000, finds a good market for her timber.

The Concord Coach in Mexico.

The diligencia general is the ordinary Concord coach, drawn by eight mules, harnessed in a complicated tangle, which is technically described as "two wheelers, four on a swing and two leaders," i. e., two at the wheels, four abreast in the middle and two ahead. The driver wore a pair of goat-skin breeches, with the long, yellow hair outside, comically suggesting the legs of a satyr. He had an assistant beside him, who wielded the whip, or, if whipping failed, pelted the mules with small stones from a leather bag filled for the purpose. There was extraordinary neatness and precision in his aim. The offender was admonished by sharp, unerring little taps upon the ear, or the root of the tail, or a projecting hip-joint. On these occasions, unlike the teamsters of the Northwest, the Vexicans do not rely on profanity.-Diligence Journey in Mexico.

The U.S. Government are using large numbers of the Improved Howe Scales. Borden, Selleck & Co., agents, Chicago, French Breakfasts.

Can't get acclimated to French breakfast. First the hour—11 o'clock! And the first dish? Soup! Potage! Soup for breakfast! And the waits between value of time to an American. What is breakfast? I mean an American breakfast. A swallow of coffee, a bite of bread, a bolt of beefteak! C'est tout, n'est pas? Oui! Time, ten minutes. But here the waits between dishes are five, ten, even fifteen minutes. Betimes methinks they have forgotten me altogether. Occasionally they commence their meal with a slice of bologna brought in on a plate with ridiculous ceremony. I fork my slice of bologna to my mouth. Voila! The plate is empty. But the Gaul cuts it up with as much pomp and circumstance as though it were a turkey, and eats it circum-spectly, bit by bit. And after the soup a single dish of boiled beans, or cauliflower. Alone and unsupported by aught else. And in ten minutes more a miniature fish. Over this the Gaul wasts a good quarter of an hour. I cut my fish in four pieces and swallow it in eight seconds, a l' Americaine. For I am diligent in business-and breakfasts. Seest thou a man diligent in business? He shall stand before kings, even though dyspepsia stand with him. After the fish a bit of steak. Enough to bait a fox trap. Oh, the precious minutes the lazy Gaul wastes over that steak! And then cheese! Cheese for breakfast. And then confection. A teaspoonful of jam! which the procrastinating Gaul requires ten minutes to eat. And then coffee and a cigarette. For all of which the Gaul takes an hour, at least. Sixty precious golden minutes wasted every day here by thousands over what they call breakfast. Because I emptied a third of the little decanter of brandy into my black coffee they charged me extra. I objected. They showed me the tide-water marks on the bottle. You must pour only down to each mark. And charged me a sou for a serviette-a napkin !- Prentice Mulford.

Wounds of the Heart.

It is generally supposed that wounds of the heart kill immediately, and a correspondent has sent to use a stag's heart with the left auricle practically annihilated and the upper half the left ventricle torn completely through by a bullet; so that three fingers can be readily passed through the wound into the cavity. Not-withstanding the extent of the injury, "the stag ran about sixty yards, the first ten yards up hill." The fact is that wounds of the heart are but seldom immediately fatal, if ever so. We know of death from a wound of the heart, in any part or however extensive. The experience in the battle-field corresponds with that of the sportsman, who never saw a deer shot through the heart that did not run some distance. Wounds of the apex kill comparatively slowly, in from one hour upward; and in one case mentioned by John Bell, in which the apex was completely severed from the rest of the organ by a sword cut, the man lived twelve hours. Indeed, out of twentynine collected cases of injury to the heart, only two were fatal within forty-the patient having died from a disease of an organ in no way connected with the lesion. Some little time elapses before the blood wholly escapes from or fails to enter the cavities, and the walls continue to contract and propel some of it into the vessels for a much longer period than is usually thought to be the case. -

The Marriage Life.

The marriage life is always an insipid, a vexatious, or a happy condition. The first is when two people of no genius or taste for themselves meet together upon such settlement as has been thought reasonable by parents and conveyancers, from an exact valuation of the land and cash of bofh- parties. In this case the young lady is no more regarded than the house and improvements in purchase of an estate ; but she goes with her fortune, rather than her fortune with her. These make up the crowd, and fill up the lumber of the human race, without beneficence toward those below them, or respect to those above them. The vexatious life arises from a conjunction of two people of quick taste and presentment, put together for reasons well known to their friends, in which especial care is taken to avoid what they think the chief of evils, poverty, and msure to them riches, with every evil besi les. These people love in a constant constraint before company. When they are within observation they fret at each other's carriage and behavior; when alone they revile each other's conduct.

The happy marriage is where two persons meet and voluntarily make choice of each other, without principally regarding or neglecting the circumstances of fortune or beauty. These may still live in spite of adversity or sickness; the former we may, in some measure, defend ourself from; the other is the portion of our very make. -Sir Richard Steele.

He Had a "Fit."

Judicious advertisers are continually looking for new methods of bringing their business before the public. The other day, at Chicago, a well dressed man fell down in a fit on a public street. He was picked up and laid on a box in front of a store, and a large crowd surrounded him, some from pity and others from curiosity. Water was sprinkled on him, and a swallow of brandy was procured and forced down his throat. He cured and forced down his throat. He revived, but looked very sick. He told a man who was kindly holding his head that he should die within a minute or two, and he wanted to leave a message. The man said he would deliver any message. The crowd was breathless, and many hats were taken off. The dying man said: "Before I die I wish to warn everybody, particularly young men, against buying clothes at these cheap shops." He grasped for breath, and continued, "Go to — & Co., corner of - streets, and you will be sure to get a perfect fit. I got this fit that I have just had, at their place." Before he could say more a man hit the fit fellow with a paint keg, and as the sick man got up to run away one fellow grabbed him by the paper collar and tore it off, while another kicked him as he went into an alley. Hiring a man to have fits is the latest advertising dodge.-Peck's

"PAT, my boy, we must all of us die once." The sick man turned over in a disgusted frame of mind, and replied: "That's just what bothers me. If we could only die half a dozen times I wouldn't worry about this,"

Insured in the Hekla Insurance Co., of Madison, for $700, which covers the loss pretty well. We are indebted for the above facts to Mr. H. H. Huseman, Mr. Knutson's nearest neighbor, who with a few others was on hand soon after the fire broke out and rendered efficient aid in saving the contents and keeping the walls from injury. The cause of the fire is something of a mystery; it was first discovered issuing from the roof at some distance from any chimney .- Below Free Press of the 26th.

Court Items.

In the Circuit Court this morning the case of Waufle vs. McLellan was given to the jury at ten o'clock, after receiving the judge's charge, and they have not yet agreed upon a verdict.

The case of D. M. Osborn & Co. vs. E. W. Jerman, action on promisory note, was tried this forenoon, and given to the jury at 2 p.m. After being out a short time, they returned a judgment for plaintiff of $83.83.

Mary Spencer et al. vs. City of Janesville, is now on trial. This is an action brought to recover damages for injuries received through a defective sidewalk; Norcross & Dunwiddie, for plaintiffs, and E. M. Hyzer for defendant.

In the municipal court this morning the arguments on the motion for a new trial in the case of Sexton vs. Snyder, was heard by Judge Patten, and the motion denied.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

The Celebration in this city last Evening.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows was established in America sixtythree years ago, at Baltimore, by Thomas Wildey and four other persons, who organized the first lodge of the order, and to day that lodge is known as Washington lodge No. 1., of Baltimore. It was in commemoration of this event that the thousands of Odd Fellows throughout the United States, assembled yesterat their lodge sixty-third anniversary of that day. this city, the order arranged for a demonstration in their hall, consisting of music, songs, recitations, speeches, story telling, dancing. The exercises were opened with prayer by Chaplain G. W. Lawrence, when the programme as published in the Gazette was carried out. The lodge room was crowded to its full capacity, and as each number was finished, the large audience pronounced their appreciation by loud applause. The musical part was performed by Miss Josephene Zurcher, Miss Gertie Wheeler and Miss Jennie Carpenter; the speaking and story telling by W. D. Hoard, of Fort Atkinson, and the recitations by Mrs. J. B. Day, all of whom did their several parts well. At the close of the programme the hall was cleared of extra chairs, when Anderson's orchestra was called upon to furnish music for the merry dancers, which was kept up for several hours. The observance of the day will long be remembered by the fraternity.

A Wise Business Stroke. We learn with pleasure that W. W. Kimball, of Chicago, has decided to retain Mr. S. B. J. Bryant as his permanent agent in Janesville. With such a man as Mr. Bryant as agent, backed by such a solid and well-known concern as Kimball's, it is no wonder that small estabschool at Waukesha. They will be sent lishments dread him. Mr. Kimball was the first men to establish the music busi ness in Janesville in a business way and on a solid basis, and Mr. Bryant was the first man to conduct it on thoroughly business principles. Mr. Bryaut's headquarters are just opposite the postoffice, -Mr. R. W. Ledwith, who has been an and we have never stepped in but that we find an attractive line of goods for customers to select from. His instruments are of various styles, and are invariably just what he says they are. This is an excellent and important advantage in dealing with Mr. Bryant.

Miss Margaret Cone, who personated Dolly Dutton, was one of the brightest gems comedy actresses time. In no part was she wanting in ability to thoroughly represent the interesting character of Dolly.

> The most humorous character in the play was that of Pittacus Green, assumed by Mr. Joseph Frankan. He had a good deal to do, and was expected to produce, in connection with Dolly Dutton, the laughter of the evening. He did not over-act, but was natural, and always funny. It should be said that Dunstan Kirke, father of Hazel, was acted by Mr. Charles Wheatleigh, and although he appeared upon the stage but comparatively a few times during the performance, his part was an important one and he played it well cancerally in the last act in his

he Keasons for so Many Resignations in Our Fire Department.

Mr. John Kelly, first assistant en gineer of our fire department, in a communication to the Janesville Times, thus

"After publishing the resignations of some of the firemen in your paper, you stated that the public knew nothing of the cause of so many resignations occurring in the fire department of late. This suggests the idea that 'tis just as well the public should be enlightened on the subject. Two years ago the working force of the fire department consisted of three companies of picked men, in all the pride of early manhood. They were good for ten years more of active fire service. Compact in organization and thoroughly disciplined, they were the equals of any regular paid fire department in the country. For several years they had devoted their leisure time, their money, and their best energies to the building up of the department until they had got it as near perfect as was possible with the facilities at their command.

This had been a pretty severe strain on their time and their resources, but their efforts were not appreciated; at which they became somewhat discontented soon commenced dropping out of the department. This fact was brought to the notice of some of our public men, when they replied, "let them go, we can get plenty of men in their engine house; must be under a certain age, and of good moral character; must possess great physical endurance, and have some occupation that will permit of his leaving at any moment to respond to an alarm. And even with the above qualifications it will take two or three training ere he becomes expert firemen, by that time (if he has stayed in so long) he has realized beyond a doubut that he is money out of pocket by staying in the department. His pay will perhaps make good the time lost in active fire service; it will not make good the time lost on other duties connected with the department, the amount of clothing ruined, nor the injury to his health, often quite serious, even to endangering his life. But like the conscript who is at first lukewarm in the military service of his country, after his first campaign he learns to love the cause he has fought for. This same spirit has often kept the firemen together under discouraging circumstances. Washington Engine Co. has but one

Such devotion to the service certainly deserves some recognition. There is no place to keep an extra horse at the West side engine house, otherwise Washington company would gladly have provided themselves with a horse for a like purpose. The above facts are some of the causes why so many of the firemen have resigned of late.

Yours truly, JOHN KELLY."
